

Blue Mountain Cards Are More Than A Success Story

The electronic greeting card industry is indeed very well known. The rage for electronic greeting cards began sometime in the early 90s and has only scaled greater heights ever since. The ecard era has arrived big time! Gone are the days when people would stand in a queue miles long to purchase a card for. It seems way long ago that scores would flock to the card store to buy a greeting for those important moments. But when the electronic greeting cards became a craze, people assumed that this could hardly be a wise business idea. Giving away ecards was indeed a curious business model. For starters moving people from the traditional paper greeting cards space was a complicated task. In essence the community attuned to giving away the classic paper cards needed to look ahead to a more technological way of doing the same thing.

If you are one of those searching for the perfect ecard that just about surmises all that you have in mind, you just came to the right place. Enter the people who make Blue Mountain Cards possible.
